Men Who Abuse Privileges.

Chambermaids at swell hotels soon become great students of human nature. It does not take them long to size up either the social or financial standing of the guests.

For instance, one showed her acumen in this direction the other day when I happened to call her attention to the array of six towels on the rack over the washstand in the bathroom.

"Think that extravagant?" said the bright young woman. "Well, don't you make any mistake!"

"But it must cost the house a lot for laundry bills," I ventured.

"Not a bit of it," she replied vivaciously. "Most of our trade here is first class. No one ever uses a lot of towels unless they are not used to them at home. Men who are accustomed to the luxuries of life do not take advantage of the supply. It is only the class who usually wipe their faces on roller towels who abuse our generosity."

And doubtless the girl knew what she was talking about.—New York Herald.

An Unsuccessful Persistent Sutor.

One of the most persistent sutors who ever proposed and was rejected was the eccentric Cruden, compiler of the concordance to the Bible. Miss Abney, who had inherited a large fortune, was the subject of his attentions. For months and months he pestered her with calls and letters. When she left home, he had papers printed, which he distributed in various places of worship, asking the congregation to pray for her safe return, and when she returned home he issued others asking the worshippers to return thanks. Miss Abney never became Mrs. Cruden.—Brandon Buckshaw.

Sweet Potato Flour.

A St. Louis woman has perfected a patent to cover the process of making "sweet potato flour." The processes are those peeling the potato and kiln drying the peel so that it will keep for any length of time as a food for live stock; of drying and grinding the potato into three distinct grades of flour, and also of slicing and drying it in the form of "Saragata chips."—New York Telegram.

HALE METHOD OF PAINLESS FILLING.

NEW DEPARTURE IN DENTISTRY!

DR. PORTER HAS RETURNED for the purpose of advertising the

"Hale Method of Painless Filling."

Absolutely painless without Chloroform, Gas, Ether or Cocaine.

OFFICE IN STEELE BUILDING, COMMERCIAL ROW, RENO.

Here are a Few Testimonials from Citizens Who have Already Tried the Method:

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—It affords me pleasure to say that the Hale method of painless filling opens a new era in the dental world. After having several very sensitive cavities filled by you with gold and amalgam with gratifying results, I am of the opinion that the method is far beyond competition. PATRICK HENRY.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—In answer to your request for my candid opinion as to the Hale method of painless filling, I beg to state that I went to one of Dr. Leek's finest operators in San Francisco, and he filled several teeth for me with more or less pain; but when he came to the one you have just filled, it was simply impossible for me to endure the torture, consequently I asked him to stop, which he did. I thought I would be obliged to have the tooth extracted. I wish to state that in five minutes after you commenced to operate there was positively no pain; it felt just as if you were cutting a piece of wood. I am so highly pleased with the manner in which you filled the tooth that I feel it but just to express my appreciation of the method. It is all you claim for it. CHARLES HOPE.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—I have had teeth extracted before by so-called painless methods, but you are the only operator who has extracted teeth for me without pain. Your method of extracting surpasses my most sanguine expectations. MRS. H. PRENTISS.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—It gives me great pleasure to state that I am thoroughly convinced of the excellence of your method. I expected to suffer dreadfully having the cavity filled, as it was the worst one I had to have done. In about five minutes after you began to work on it I was satisfied that it would not hurt, which it did not during the entire operation. The tooth you extracted is one I have been dreading for eight years, and after consulting dentists in Sacramento, who advised me not to have it removed, as the ordeal might prove injurious to my health and also disfigure my face. You extracted the tooth without a particle of pain, and I will have no further dread of the dental chair, providing I can obtain the Hale Method. MARY E. FLECKENSTEIN.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—After using Hale's Painless Method as administered by you in the extraction of teeth, I can bear testimony that the results are satisfactory, and that teeth can be extracted painless by said method. Respectfully yours, HENRY J. NEYLAND.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—I believe that the Hale Painless Method of filling is destined to lead the world in its special field of usefulness. I am particularly impressed with it, owing to the fact that one does not lose consciousness while having teeth filled, and at the same time does not suffer a particle of pain. You are at liberty to refer any one who contemplates having sensitive teeth filled to me. JOHN SHERITT.

SILVER OR BONDS.

The late unpleasantness between the president and Secretary Carlisle has caused considerable comment. The laws of congress make the notes issued in payment of silver bullion purchases, redeemable in coin—gold or silver—at the option of the secretary of the treasury. The notes issued for silver bullion are held by a syndicate which furnishes the bullion to the government. This syndicate, it is alleged, is composed of American and foreign brokers and bankers. They buy the bullion of producers and dispose of it to the government every month at a slight advance over the market quotations. The notes which they receive are presented for payment at the sub-treasury in New York, and are invariably redeemed in gold, which gold is shipped to Europe. The bullion for which these notes are issued is stored in the treasury, so that in reality the money in the country is being reduced rather than increased by the purchases, as practically the effect of issuing notes which are redeemed in gold is the same as if gold was paid direct out of the treasury for bullion.

The law authorizing the purchase of silver bullion leaves it discretionary with the secretary of the treasury to redeem the notes issued in payment of the bullion in gold or standard dollars. It also empowers the secretary to have sufficient of the bullion coined at the mints to redeem the notes in silver, if the secretary desires to do so. It appears that Secretary Carlisle, who was publicly in favor of free coinage, as senator from Kentucky, is yet disposed to favor silver by redeeming treasury notes with standard dollars, and proposed to exercise his discretionary power in the matter by doing so when the free gold in the treasury was exhausted. An intimation of this intention was the cause of the unpleasantness between him and the president, who is thoroughly imbued with Wall street financial ideas. The president's views prevailed and not a silver dollar is paid out for treasury notes.

Now, it is conceded that if the demand for gold to ship to Europe continues, Secretary Carlisle must issue bonds, and his authority to do so is questioned, to get gold for shipment abroad, or redeem the treasury notes in silver which he has unquestioned authority to do. This will bring the financial question right home to the people of the whole country. Will the masses endorse the policy of increasing the interest-bearing debt of the United States to get gold to ship out of the country, or insist on the coinage of the silver bullion now stored in the treasury, and paying a part of the government obligations in standard dollars? That is one of the questions which must be settled in the very near future. The office-holders and office-seekers, even in the west, where public sentiment is, as it should be, strongly in favor of silver, will, in the hope of placating the administration, support the Cleveland-Sherman-Wall street combination view of the question, but the masses of the people will insist on reducing instead of increasing the public debt, by coining silver and making money more plentiful.

A PATRIOT OR A SCOUNDREL.

William Newby, according to the epitaph on a small tombstone on the battlefield, was killed in the battle of Shiloh. William Newby, according to the records of the pension office, entered a claim recently for $20,000 back pension. A special pension examiner took charge of the living William Newby with orders from the pension bureau to make a thorough examination. This examiner went with Mr. Newby to several persons whom Mr. Newby claimed as relatives. Some of these did not, or at least would not, recognize Mr. Newby, while others did and one woman embraced him right in the presence of the examiner, claiming that he was her long lost brother. This did not satisfy the pension examiner, who is a new and ambitious official, who desires to make a record for himself and the administration by exposing the rascality of fraudulent pension claimants. Finally, as a crucial test, Mr. Newby, who claims to have been originally from Illinois and to have served in an Illinois regiment, proposed to accompany the examiner to Nashville, Tennessee, where he claims his mother resides, to be identified by her. If the mother fails to find the strawberry mark on William's person, it is possible that he may have what is alleged to be his grave exhumed to prove that the bones therein are not and could not possibly, by any combination of circumstances be his mortal remains.

What seems strange about the claimant is that if $20,000 back pension is due him for services rendered, or injuries sustained by him in the war which ended twenty-eight years ago, that he should have remained dead so long, and did not resurrect himself and present his claim a few years ago when everybody who served in any capacity in the army and thousands who did not serve the country in any capacity whatever, were granted pensions for political purposes. Mr. Newby is evidently a patriot who did not demand a pension so long as he could possibly support himself without, or a scoundrel who is trying to personate a soldier who fell fighting for his country at the battle of Shiloh which was fought April 6th and 7th, 1862.

THIRD DAY'S BUSINESS.

Resolutions of Importance Introduced and Passed.

COL. IRISH OPPOSES SILVER.

The National Capital Deserted by the President and Cabinet Officials.

THIRD DAY

Of the Trans-Mississippi Congress. Special to the JOURNAL.]

OGDEN, April 26.—The Trans Mississippi Congress began its morning session by passing a resolution calling on the railways to place their rates to the world's fair at such a figure as will enable the masses in the west to attend.

The Nicaragua canal was then taken up. Let of Colorado opposed the construction of the canal by the United States because it would only bring contributions to the prosperity of Great Britain.

John P. Irish of California argued that the general prosperity of the world would be enhanced by the building of the canal, and that every part of this country would share in it.

Governor Waite wanted the canal, if built at all, to be absolutely under the control of this country and in the interest of the people of this nation.

Hayburn of Idaho spoke for his State in favor of the canal.

J. W. Feighan of Washington and J. H. Roberts of Sacramento favored the canal.

W. H. Harvey of Utah claimed that governmental aid without governmental control would again repeat the history of the Pacific railroads.

Holmes was surprised to find that Bart of California was in favor of the canal while the Southern Pacific was against it.

Arthur R. Briggs, secretary of the San Francisco chamber of commerce, told the story of the visit of DeLesseps to San Francisco in the interest of the Panama canal. DeLesseps was forced to admit that the people of California were better informed regarding the isthmus than he was. He admitted to the chamber of commerce committee that he had made no personal survey of the canal and was not able to give an intelligent explanation as to overcoming the natural obstacles of the isthmus.

O. W. Crawford of Texas claimed that the profit on the cotton that could be sold to China and Japan alone would pay the interest on the bonds.

Congressman-elect Cannon of Los Angeles, a Populist, said he opposed governmental aid unless the original promoters were either bought out or frozen out. If this canal is controlled by a monopoly it will combine with the railroads just as the Pacific Mail company has done.

T. M. Patterson of Denver, Col., for the interests of his State, favored the canal.

Governor Osborn of Wyoming arrived and received an ovation from the congress.

On the reassembling of the congress Governor Prince of New Mexico introduced the following resolution which was adopted:

Resolved, That this congress ask the director of the columbian exposition to set apart a day in the month of September next to be known as silver day, when addresses on the silver question can be delivered and the day otherwise celebrated in an appropriate manner.

The chairman of the committee on resolutions introduced resolutions on transportation rates and the Nicaragua canal. The discussion occupied the morning session on the latter, opinions greatly divergent as to the benefits being expressed. Resolutions were then passed as follows:

Resolved, That this congress urgently requests that rates of fare on the various lines of railway be so fixed as to enable the masses of the transmississippi region to attend the world's columbian exposition.

Resolved, That the speedy construction of the Nicaragua canal is most important to the maritime, commercial, industrial and political interests of this country and that every reasonable endeavor should be made by the United States to obtain from Nicaragua an absolute title to sufficient territory to construct such canal, the same to be constructed and owned by the United States.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this congress that the law regulating commerce between states should be so amended as to insure the people of every state and section equitable freight and passenger rates and that a tribunal be created or designated where questions between the people and transportation lines may be speedily adjusted.

The following resolutions on silver coinage were introduced:

Resolved, That we demand that the congress of the United States immediately reopen the mints of our country to the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver on equal terms at the present ratio of sixteen to one and that the governments use the coins of both metals without discrimination.

Resolved, That we are unalterably opposed to the repeal of what is known as the Sherman silver purchasing act, until it is replaced with a law providing for such free and unlimited coinage.

Colonel Irish of California wanted to know why silver and gold were selected instead of other metals and why the ratio of 1 to 16 was mentioned.

C. C. Goodwin of the Salt Lake Tribune was called out and said that the ratio of 16 to 1 was insisted on because that ratio existed when silver was demonetized.

Governor Waite of Colorado rejoiced to see the silver question becoming of interest to men of all parties.

J. A. Leet of Denver and A. C. Fisk of Denver spoke, the former against the resolution.

Holman of Oregon in his remarks turned on Republicans and Democrats alike for their inconsistency.

Judge Van Waggener of Sioux city, Iowa, declared that the agricultural interests of Iowa had sustained a greater loss through the demonetization of silver than had the mining interests of the western states. He was in favor of free coinage of the silver product of the world.

Whitmore of Missouri challenged the statement made by several speakers that silver had been demonetized by a trick.

Bray of Montana said in 1873 silver was demonetized because it was becoming too valuable to coin, and the demand is made now that because it is now so cheap it should be demonetized.

The resolution will be voted on tomorrow with every intimation that it will pass as presented.

This evening Colonel Irish will speak against unlimited coinage and Senator Stewart for it.

An Unusual Occurrence.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—It has rarely happened in the history of this country that the seat of government has been entirely deserted by the president and ministers, but such, however, is the case to-day. The president and members of the cabinet left Washington at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in a magnificent special train to witness the naval review.

A large crowd of citizens gathered and watched the departure of the chief executive and wife and official family and wives.

A telegram was received at the navy department to-day from New York announcing the death there of Captain Gilbert C. Wilts from congestion of the brain. Captain Wilts commanded the Boston during the trouble in Hawaii and led the marines that hoisted our flag establishing a protectorate over the islands.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession because it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

TRITE SAYINGS.

Not Always Credited to the Right Source by Those who Make Quotations.

In popular phrases there are two great sources, both drawn upon so much that we are apt to attribute all such sayings to one or the other—namely, the Bible and Shakespeare. It is often difficult to persuade people that the saying, "God tempests the wind to the shorn lamb," is not in the Bible; it is, in fact, a phrase of Sterne's, the author of "Tristram Shandy."

"Cleanliness is next to godliness," and "God helps those who help themselves," are also generally believed to be in the Bible, but are not.

Many of our usually quoted phrases are, however, from the Bible, says the Boston Globe, among them being: "No rest for the sole of the foot," "Darkness which may be felt," "Bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave," "The wife of his bosom," "I am going the way of the earth," "A still, small voice," "All that man hath he will give for his life," "There the wicked cease from troubling and the weary be at rest," "Man is born to trouble," "The sparks fly upward," "Oh, that my adversity had written a book," "The lines are fallen to me in pleasant places," "His enemies shall lick the dust," "Happy is the man that has his quiver full," "The heart knoweth its own bitterness," "Heap coals of fire on his head," "Open rebuke is better than secret love," "There is no new thing under the sun," "A living dog is better than a dead lion," "The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong," "Wise in his own conceit," "Grind the faces of the poor," "Weighed in the balance and found wanting," "Who touches pitch will be defiled," "Laughing to scorn," "He that runs may read," "Do not cast pearls before swine," and a great many other expressions that have served the turn of thousands of years, and help us to realize how little human nature changes in the generations that go by, since what suited men so long ago expresses our minds so well.

But on the other hand, many familiar phrases have another source than the Bible and some of the best known have been originally said by people not at all otherwise famous as sayers of smart things.

A Mme Cornue was the author of the phrase, "No man is a hero to his valet."

One Herel said, "Speech was given to man to disguise his thoughts."

An obscure journalist invented a phrase that was immediately quoted in France as having been said by the Bourbon Prince, who was restored to the French throne in 1814 as Charles X. He was credited with assuring the nation that he would not restore old abuses in the following phrase: "Nothing is altered. There is only one Frenchman the more in France."

"A nation of shopkeepers," generally attributed to Napoleon I, really occurs in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations."

"The pen is mightier than the sword" is the saying of Bulwer-Lytton.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever" is from Keats.

"The heart that has truly loved never forgets" belongs to Tom Moore; and so do "The luxury of woe" and "The trail of the serpent is over them all."

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die," was the pretty saying of Campbell, and his, also, is "Coming events cast their shadows before."

WADSWORTH'S IDEAL.
"Plain living and high thinking" was Wadsworth's ideal.

"Rose like a rocket and fell like its stick," was said, incorrectly and smartly, by Thomas Paine of Burke.

"Variety is the very spice of life that gives it all its flavor," is not quite the sentiment that we expect from the excellent Cowper, but he said it.

It was he also wanted "A lodge in some vast wilderness," and declared that "God made the country, man the town."

"Alliteration's artful aid" was spoken of by the little-read poet Churchill.

"Pursues the even tenor of his way," was the phrase of a bishop of London in the last century, Dr. Porteus.

"The pink of perfection" was originated by Oliver Goldsmith, so were "Measures, not men," and "Man wants but little here below, and wants that little long."

Gray, the author of the "Elegy," is responsible for many popular phrases, among them, "Full many a gem of purest ray serene," "To waste its sweetness on the desert air," "This pleasing, anxious beginning," "The paths of glory lead but to the grave," and "Where ignorance is bliss it is folly to be wise."

Dr. Johnson gave us "To point a moral and adorn a tale," and "Who lives to please must please to live." He also said, "Who drives fat oxen should himself be fat," in which there is more sound than sense; and uttered the dangerous saying, "Claret for boys, port for men, but brandy for heroes."

HAPPY PHRASES OF POPE AND BURNS.
Pope and Burns are respectively the authors of more familiar phrases than anybody else but Shakespeare in modern times. Here are a few of Pope's: "Shoot folly as she flies," "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," "Man never is but always to be blessed," "Whatever is, is right," "The proper study of mankind is man," "Grows with his growth and strengthens with his strength," "Order is heaven's first law," "Worth makes the man and want of it the fellow," "Honor and shame from no condition rise; act well your part—there all the honor lies," "An honest man's the noblest work of God," "Thou wert my guide, philosopher and friend," "Woman's at best a contradiction still," "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined," "Who shall decide when doctors disagree," "A little learning is a dangerous thing," "To err is human, to forgive divine," "Beauty draws us with a single hair," "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread," "Damn with faint praise," "The many-headed monster," and an endless number of equally familiar and clever phrases took their rise in the clever little hunch-back's brain.

A few specimens of Burns' happy phrases to conclude: "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley," "The fear o' hell's the hangman's whip, to hand the wretch in order," "But pleasures are like poppies spread; you seize the flower, its bloom is shed," "O wad some power the giftie to gie us to see ourselves as either see us," "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," "Nursing her wrath to keep it warm," "The mirth and fun grew fast and furious," "What's done we partly may compute, but know not what's resisted," "Princes and lords are but the breath of kings," "The rank is but the guinea stamp, a man's a man for a' that."

ARID LANDS AND IRRIGATION.
Suggestions From the State Engineer of Wyoming.

In view of the fact that the trans- mississippi congress now in session at Ogden, will discuss the arid land and irrigation questions, the Ogden Standard and refers to suggestions of state engineer Elwood Mead of Wyoming, published in the Irrigation Age which the Age comments upon as follows:

He believes that no part of the arid land should be disposed of except upon the condition that the land, shall be reclaimed. When an individual or company had found a good source of water supply and demonstrated that a scheme for reclamation was feasible, he would have them proceed to construct their canals with the understanding that the cost of the ditch should be a first lien on the land it waters. This, Mr. Mead thinks, would give absolute security for the investment. Settlers might then come in and take up land under the ditch by assuming their proportionate share of the cost of construction and operation. They would thus become stockholders in the enterprise, and when all the land was settled they would own the works of irrigation. Thus, instead of land and water companies we should have construction companies.

Investment in an irrigation enterprise would be attended by very little risk. If settlers came and took up land under these conditions the construction company would get its money out with a reasonable profit; if settlers did not come in, then the lien would be foreclosed and the company would have the land.

"Mr. Mead thinks this would be very attractive to capital and settlers alike and result in the rapid reclamation and settlement of the arid public domain. He thinks it would be far superior to the present desert land law, or the proposition to give one-half the land to anybody who will reclaim the other half. Such a plan could be carried out either by the Nation or the state, provided it had absolute control of both water and land. Mr. Mead favors state control for several reasons. First, the water is now the property of most of the states. Second, western men are far better able to deal with this problem than national officials. Third, the problem has different phases in different states and should be handled as a local question."

THE MARSHALSHIP.
Straight-Out and Most Worthy Democrats Have no Better Than Silver Men.

A double-barreled politician who is advocating the principles of the two golden parties, and therefore assumes to know what is going on in both, said evening before last: "Mr. Humphreys was successful in his contest for the marshalship over a Populist-Democrat of Carson, who was endorsed by the Weaver-Democratic committee, and nearly all of the leading Democrats of that ilk of the western part of the state. The straight-outs score the first blood in the patronage contest of the state of Nevada."

Last night another shot from the same barrel was fired off and the declaration made with emphasis that there were three other candidates for the marshalship besides Mr. Humphreys, one of them "S. H. Day, a straight-out Democrat and a most worthy and popular gentleman." If this is true it shows that straight-out and most worthy and popular Democrats are no better off when the spoils are being divided than the wicked and presumable unpopular Populist or Silver men.

THE PASSING OF THE COWBOY.

That Picturesque Western Figure Will Soon Become Extinct.

The cowboy, like the buffalo, the prairie wolf, the painted redskin and the highway robber of the plains, is rapidly becoming extinct in the west. Civilization is as hard on cowboys as it is on the other animals enumerated above. The cowboy, however, has been largely a myth. He has been existing in the imagination of Eastern writers, says the Boston Transcript, just as several fine Indians were turned out of Cooper's mind. There are many herders of cattle and sheep in the mountains and valleys of the west. But the herder is the reality out of which came the mythical cowboy.

Texas produced the herder and cowboy. Texas produces him yet in his fullness. Last winter, when the cattle "kings" of Wyoming were trying to kill off or drive out the actual settlers who were making homes on government land and breaking up the vast ranges that have been used for years without permission, the settlers were found to be too strong for the "kings."

It became necessary to have help in the work of depopulating the country, and Texas was called upon to furnish the men. They were of the herder or cowboy type, and no other state could produce their equals for that particular work. Before they "cut loose," however, it was decided that the settlers had better be left in possession of the lands they had homesteaded for themselves. Utah has the best herders in the United States. They are, as a rule, Mormons and do not partake of the Texas characteristics of the same class. In Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado the herder is no longer "a holy terror." Twenty years ago he was all that phrase implies save the "holy."

I spent the summer of 1873 in a cattle village in Nebraska; away up in sight of Fort Kearney. That reservation, by the way, was for many years a gathering point for herders and herds that had pastured up from Texas. The reservation was large, the Platt river ran through it, the feed was good and the land could not be taken up by settlers. The village in which I existed only for three months was a shipping point and there were, it was said, not less than 100,000 cattle there that season. The business of the village was mainly in saloons, hotels and the drugstore, a more select saloon.

I saw the cowboy element just as it was, never totally depraved, but always wild and often dangerous. There were Pawnee Indian women about the camps and equally barbaric white women in the village. The herders all drank and gambled. They would run accounts between pay days and a fair percentage of the debts were paid. At times a herd of herders would take charge of the village; that is, they would fire up on forty-rod whiskey, mount their ponies and with pistols cracking and lariats flying they would ride and run over the town like wild, yelling Comanches. Then it was dangerous to be out and about. Then doors were locked and such windows as had shutters were closed. Now and then a man would be hurt, but the law was afraid and nothing was done. When the whiskey worked off the boys would tell yarns on each other and laugh over their frolics. If they had been a numerous lot I would not now be writing.

The Victor Cycles.

Bicycle riding, which has been recognized as a healthful exercise, has become a rage in Reno, and the person who is not the possessor of a bicycle is, using a common expression, "not in it." There are high and low grade wheels of different manufacture, but none bear a better reputation for stability than the Victor. A. C. Helmold, proprietor of the "Comfort" tontorial parlors, has secured the agency for Victor wheels, and his announcement in another column tells you what he can do for you. A1 will take pleasure in explaining to would-be purchasers the advantages the Victor possesses, and has special arrangements for teaching beginners how to ride. Read his announcement.

ODD FELLOWS' ANNIVERSARY.

A Large Attendance and an Excellent Program.

The Odd Fellows of Reno celebrated the 74th anniversary of the introduction of the order in the United States at the hall of Truckee lodge last evening. There was a large attendance and seating room was at a premium when President Foley called the assemblage to order. The opening order, with piano accompaniment was first on the program, after which there was prayer by Chaplain R. C. Leeper. Then followed a series of interrogatives and responses relating to Odd Fellowship. The exercises comprised an instrumental solo by Miss Jennie Leachman, remarks by the President, song by Miss Annie Schadler, recitation by P. H. Mulcahy, song by Miss Lillian True, oration by Judge Currier and violin duet by Masters Fred and Frank Julien, each and all of which were applauded. The instrumental and vocal solos were well rendered. The poem, which had much significance, was recited effectively, and the oration by Judge Currier showed much research and was a masterly effort containing much information of interest not only to members of the order but to the general public. The violin duet by the Masters Julien was roundly applauded and encored.

The exercises closed with singing, after which a palatable collation was served to which all did ample justice. The celebration was a grand success, though in consequence of illness a part of the published program was not rendered, and the hope was expressed that Odd Fellows would ever continue to celebrate the anniversary of their benevolent order.

What You Shoot in China.

A naval officer once told the writer that pleasant shooting in China was very fair and would be really good if there were not so many obstacles about to enjoying it comfortably. He said that the people were so numerous that if you let a gun go off almost anywhere in China you were pretty sure to hit a Chinaman. They seemed easy, however, to deal with, a small present as damages settling them away in a contented state of mind, and indeed this naval authority did say that they would sometimes try to get in the shooter's way on purpose to get these damages.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Imitation in the Matter of Dress.
Imitation is one of the most marked characteristics of human nature, and in nothing is this more noticeable than in the matter of dress. To the desire to do as others do may be attributed the prevalence of almost all the fashions that have existed since the days when our primitive ancestors donned their unpretentious fig leaves.—London Tit-Bits.

Metal Ties For Roadbeds.
Numerous metal ties have been invented and many railroads have tried them but all have proved unsatisfactory. The principal objections to them are based on their cost and their nonelasticity. A track laid on metal ties wears out rolling stock much faster than one laid on timber.—New York Tribune

A Woman Superintendent.
The momentous question whether it should be a lady superintendent or woman superintendent has been decided by the trustees of the normal college. The executive committee had recommended that the bylaws of the college be amended by designating one of the professors woman superintendent.

Commissioner Lummis said he preferred lady superintendent. While there was no doubt that woman superintendent was correct, still he thought the term was not generally applied in institutions of as much dignity as the normal college. He made an amendment that lady be inserted instead of woman.

Commissioner Hubbell said woman was better form than lady. Mr. Lummis withdrew his amendment, and it is now woman superintendent.—New York Sun.

Rather Unlucky.
A hungry looking countryman was leisurely exploring one of the quiet lanes in the city in order to comfort the inner man, when his ears were suddenly salu-tated by a shrill voice, which uttered in rapid tones the following incomprehensible jargon: "Biledanancapers—Rosebeefrosgosrosmutunantaters—Biledamancabagevegetable—Walkinsitake-seatur."

The astonished man hastened his pace in order to find a house where they spoke English.—London Tit-Bits.

An Example of Resignation.
M. Pasteur is devoted to his studies and to his family. It was a terrible blow to him when his daughter married and left for her new home, but he could console himself after a fashion of his own.

"Well," he said after she was gone, with a long sigh but with a gleam of contentment in his eyes. "At least I shall be able now to devote myself to ypiond fever."—Youth's Companion.

A Matrimonial Suggestion.
Mr. Beenthere—Why don't you get married?

Mr. Oldbach—No use. There is no woman who will take me.

Mr. Beenthere—Of course not. With that cast of countenance you can hardly expect a woman to take you. You must take a woman. Texas Sittings.

COMPLETE MANHOOD AND HOW TO ATTAIN IT.

At last a medical work that tells the cause, describes the effects, and gives the remedy for the most beautiful, medicine in the world. It is a complete treatise on the subject of manhood, and is the only book of the kind that is both scientific and popular. It is the work of a man who has spent years of his life in the study of the subject, and who has been successful in curing thousands of men who were suffering from the same trouble. It is a book that every man should have, and it is a book that every man should read. It is a book that will tell you the cause of your trouble, and it will tell you how to cure it. It is a book that will give you the most complete and reliable information on the subject of manhood.
It is a book that is both scientific and popular, and it is a book that every man should have and read.
